

When was the last time God blew the lid off your assumptions and prejudicial response to people? How has He changed the way you see and respond to those who are not from your tribe or nation? How do you react when you discover that God is obviously interested in people outside your comfort zone? What are you doing to focus, or refocus, your efforts to cooperate with Him and His work all around us? This morning we will witness God's sovereign grace to change the course of human history through the work of the Holy Spirit. May He so work in us.

Let's all focus our efforts where God is at work in our world

- He's at work where we _____ (vs. 1-4)

- He works to _____ where it's needed (v.15)

- He works through meaningful _____ (v.24)

- He works on how we _____ people (v. 28)

Personal Application and Group Interaction

1. Describe your preparation for Easter this year.
2. Where have you witnessed God working recently?
3. How has God convinced you that your devotion to Him and His work needed to be refocused? What have you done about it?
4. Who is in your “oikos”...that is, five important relations through which God may choose to do His work?
5. Describe someone you now see in a different light. What are you doing to cooperate with what God is doing through that relationship?

Let's focus our efforts where God
is at work.
