

“If anyone would like to acquire humility, I can, I think, tell him the first step. The first step is to realize that one is proud. And a biggish step, too. At least, nothing whatever can be done before it. If you think you are not conceited, it means you are very conceited indeed.” (Mere Christianity, C. S. Lewis)

NOTES:

2:1
If there is any...

2:2
The same mind...

2:3
If only there were humility...

2:4
The other side of self...

Complete this thought. If only I was humble this is what today would have looked like...If only I was humble this is what this week would have looked like...if only I was humble this is what this year would have looked like...

How has Jesus changed your life so that being united to Him allows you to even consider being like-minded with other Christians?

When and where does your self-serving nature kick in?
Do you think you are even aware of it?

What is so difficult about seeing others interest as more important than yours?
