

So That, On That Day

What brilliant stars
They shine so bright
Unhindered by tapestry's night
Though the sky grow cold
And darkness nigh
They shine ever bright
To all with sight

Hang on to the Word of life!

NOTES:

The Damage of complaining

Be glad and rejoice with me.

How do people who are not Christians see Christians?

What would you say bothers non-Christians most about Christians?

What do you think your part is and can be in helping or positively impacting the world's view of Christianity, but more importantly, their understanding of the gospel?

When has your complaint turned into grumbling not merely toward leaders, but toward God? Is there a difference? How do you think that has impacted others around your life who don't know Jesus?

Verses 16-17 shifts to Paul's joy in living a life of sacrifice for the sake of this church. How have you sacrificed for the household of God and what is the outcome? Can you rejoice or are you bitter? How do you explain Paul's attitude?
