

What do you think everyone will be talking about in 2019? Will it be walls, energy and the environment, or “Fortnight,”? One thing for sure, people will be talking about things that are front and center in their thoughts. We will know what bothers them. We will also discover those things that inspire them and give them hope. So, what will we be talking about...and to whom? Psalm 145, a song of David, introduces the last few psalms urging us to speak up and sing out.

To “_____”

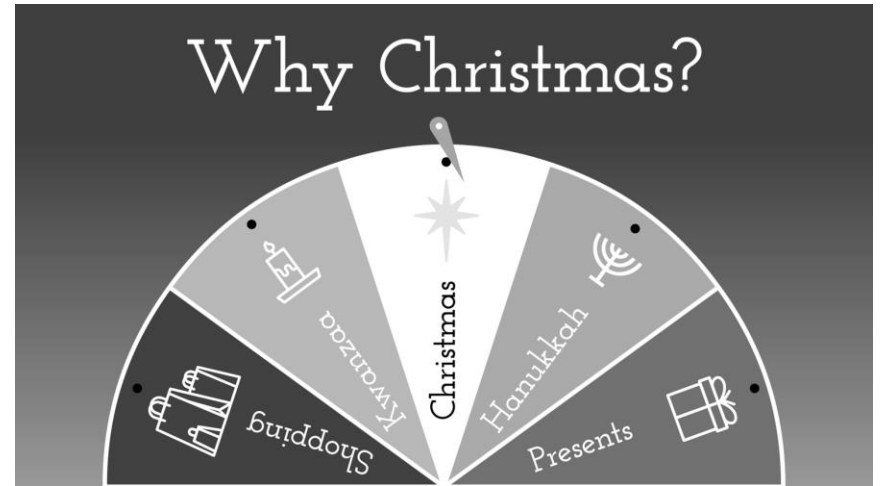

To his “_____”

To “_____”

To other “_____”

Personal Application and Interaction

1. What do you think everyone will be talking about in 2019?
2. How would you like to grow in Christ in the coming year? How will such growth affect how you talk to God and others about Him?
3. What are you learning to do when someone says “Praise God”?
4. For what are you likely to “commend God’s works to another generation”?
5. Which of God’s actions or attributes are reoccurring themes when you talk to God or others about Him?

What will I say?

Psalm 145

Pastor John

December 30, 2018

